$2500 Reward

Colonel's Death Called Murder

TAIPEI, Oct. 8 (UPI)

Taipei authorities said yesterday an American army officer found dead last Wednesday in his Taipei home was murdered.

The Criminal Investigation Department said the police administration has offered a $2500 reward for information leading to the solution of the case.

The CID said evidence showed that Lieut. Col. Tom E. Glover, 51, a member of the U. S. Military Assistance and Advisory Group (MAAG) here, was killed before his house was set afire early Wednesday.

Col. Glover's body was found in the ruins of the house after the fire was brought under control.

A statement said an autopsy performed on Col. Glover's body on Okinawa showed the 51-year-old army officer died of "hemorrhages resulting from multiple injuries and fractures at the base of the skull."

The CID said two blood-stained towels were found in the bathroom of the five room house which Col. Glover had moved into only the day before the fire. He was a bachelor and lived alone in the house.

Other indications that Col. Glover was murdered, the CID said, was a piece of old cloth strapped around his neck, and a piece of blood-stained glass vase or bottle and pocket knife lying near the body.

Col. Glover, an engineer arrived in Formosa last June from Washington.
